Move over, Robbie

MATT'S THE NEW MUSIC MAN

EXCLUSIVE

MATT Willis is being lined up to become the next "new Robbie Williams".

The ex-Busted boozer, 22, has been completely re-styled and has recorded an album full of Robbie-esque tracks.

And record label Mercury are pouring millions into totally renovating his image with a view to thrusting him into the arena with Simon Webbe, 26, and Lee Ryan, 22, as boybanders who've gone solo.

I'm told: "There's still no one who's matched Robbie in that field and Mercury see Matt as the Busted dark horse to do it."

Hate

"Matt's working with a stylist who's dressed the likes of Brian Molko from Placebo and Marilyn Manson so prepare yourselves for Matt looking dapper in a dark, edgy way."

"The look he's going for is quite rocky too, but in a stylish, fashiony way."

Musically, I'm told his sound is quite epic.

My source said: "The first single is probably going to be Hey Kid, and people are either going to fall crazily in love with his music or totally hate it."

"It could see him become the new Robbie and there are strong nods to bands like AC/DC, Van Halen and Def Leppard on quite a few of the tracks."

Like Robbie, Matt's struggled with the demon booze and even had to check into The Priory earlier this year to purge his system.

Ex-bandmate Charlie Simpson, 20, found success with Fightstar. The other one – James Bourne, 22 – churns out whining faux Americas guitar pop with a nasal twang.

I'm intrigued by Matt's music and 2006 could well be a big year for him.

Justin's label went too Phar

JUSTIN Timberlake has been snubbed by super producer Pharrell Williams.

The man who made Justin cool by crafting Justinified with him has refused to work on the follow up album.

Pharrell, 32, said: "Justin's my boy. We got a lot of history together, we got Grammys off his album. We'll always be cool but his record label upset me so I'm not going to be on his next project."

"I told him not to worry – he could win more Grammys with his own solo work."

Justin, 24, said of his new stuff: "It's coming out early next year and the first single might be a song called Best Man U Eva Had."

I wonder if it's about Britney, 23, or Cameron Diaz, 33?

ON HIS OWN: Justin

In at the sharp end with Blunt

JAMES Blunt struggled to perform in bed with TV babe Mischa Barton. He got The OC star, 19, in the promo for his new single Goodbye My Lover, which is available exclusively on 3 Mobile now.

He said: "It was a tough job performing in bed with Mischa all day in front of a big crew but someone has to do it."

And James, 28, is a notorious swordsman... I wonder.

DAMIAN Marley is playing a secret one-off gig at London's Kings College on December 12. His album Welcome To Jamrock is one of the best LPs out this year and you'd be doing yourself a massive favour going to this one. Expect immense bass, sweet vocals and social comment from the 27-year-old.

Deadly dispute

THE Dead 60s face a megabucks legal battle over their recordings.

The Scouse band – well liked on this column – are being sued to the tune of £150,000 by Red Alert Music productions, who claim the group has infringed copyright.

They're seeking an injunction banning the group from infringing copyright in its sound recordings without permission, plus an order forcing them to hand over all infringing copies of unauthorised recordings... among other things.

MADONNA is officially the most successful female act of all time.

The Book of British Hit Singles & Albums says she's spent 1,654 weeks in the charts.

Hung Up and Confessions On A Dancefloor are currently atop the singles and albums charts, making Madge, 47, the only woman ever to do it three times.

A Brit of the other

LAY-DEES' man David Walliams isn't the only one enjoying a sizzling sex life thanks to Little Britain.

Funnyman David, 33, has been linked with gorgeous babes including Denise van Outen and model Lisa Snowdon, both 31.

But the hit comedy's outrageous characters have made Brits more relaxed, resulting in a huge sex surge across the country.

One in five Brits believe characters like chav Vick Pollard or gay Dafydd, played by Matt Lucas, 31, are sparking eccentricity.

Stress

Seven in 10 Brits admit to finding eccentrics sexy, and 90% admit to wearing odd clothes or pursuing bizarre habits.

Consultant psychologist Dr David Weeks said: "Eccentrics experience much lower levels of stress and are generally happier and healthier."

Eileen Broch, of Yahoo, which conducted the survey, added: "Eccentricity is about having the courage to do things differently."

JOEY BRO: I TRIED TO PULL AXE OUT OF LAD'S HEAD

VICTIM: Anthony Walker was killed with an ice axe

THE brother of football star Joey Barton yesterday claimed he had tried to remove the ice axe embedded in the head of teenager Anthony Walker.

Jobless Michael Barton, 17, denies killing the 18-year-old black A-level student in a racist attack - and told a jury he had tried to help him.

He claimed he had met Anthony, left, several times in the past and insisted he had no problem with him or any other black people.

Barton said he joined his cousin Paul Taylor, 20, in a park with the intention of having a fight with innocent

Anthony and his cousin Marcus Binns, also 18. He also told the jury

■ by JOHN MAHONEY

he ended up chasing Marcus out of the park in Huyton, Merseyside.

He returned after hearing a bottle smash, fearing Taylor might be hurt.

Shock

Barton, the brother of Manchester City midfielder Joey, 23, told Liverpool Crown Court:

"The first thing I saw was Anthony Walker. He was lying there. He had something out of his head, and I tried to help him.

"I tried to remove the weapon gently. I felt sick and in shock. When I couldn't move it I ran away back to the car.

"There was blood on the top of my right hand. I kept my hand in front of me in case blood dripped on to my clothes."

Asked if he said anything to Taylor Barton, of Huyton, replied: "What have you fing done?"

Taylor, also of Huyton, has admitted the murder. The trial continues.

Prices take a tumble

FIERCE supermarket price wars have seen Britain's weekly shopping bills cut by £1 billion in the past two years.

Competition between Tesco, Asda, Sainsbury's and Morrison has led to massive deflation in groceries.

Households now pay £69 less for the same basket of goods over a year than they did in 2003.

Tesco now claims almost 23% of the grocery market and retail analyst Verdict says: "This is a phenomenal achievement for one retailer."

I'VE BECOME THE PARIS HILTON OF DONCASTER

Sex video at market

■ by JERRY LAWTON

SHAMELESS Stuart Dent filmed a sex romp with his lover and turned her into the "Paris Hilton of Doncaster".

The randy market trader refused to take no for an answer when his 31-year-old girlfriend refused to let him video them in bed together.

So he hid a camera on a wardrobe to record their bedroom antics.

She discovered she had been framed months later, after they had split up, when one of her pals unknowingly bought an hour-long DVD of their lovemaking at the market where Dent worked.

A mutual pal told Dent's horrified ex. She immediately called police and they arrested him.

Angry

Last night Dent was facing jail after admitting breaching the Sexual Offences Act by recording a person engaged in a private act without their consent for personal gratification.

After Doncaster magistrates adjourned sentencing, Dent's angry ex - who the judge ruled cannot be named - said she dare not show her face outside her home because she fears the whole town has now seen her in action.

She stormed: "I feel like the Paris Hilton of Doncaster."

She was referring to explicit recordings by an ex boyfriend of 24-year-old heiress Paris Hilton, called 1 Night In Paris, which has become one of the biggest-selling videos in the world.

The woman added: "I was absolutely shattered at what he'd done."

"And he was never up to much in bed, either."

Dent, 43, from Balby, Doncaster, said he installed the camera for security, and denied passing the tape to anybody else.

Our vintage artists go THRILLED

THE BRIT PACK:
Annie Lennox,
and, below, Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones

■ by NADINE LINGE
BRITISH artists stole the show at the American Music Awards with crowd-pleasing live performances – but it was sexy US babes who hit all the right notes with their skimpy outfits.

Curvy Pamela Anderson, 38, looked a real rock chick in bum-skimming hotpants, plunging top and heavy bling jewellery.

And fellow former Baywatch star Carmen Electra, 33, showed off her own prize gongs in a cleavage-revealing dress.

Diva Mariah Carey, 35, had the audience gasping as she opened the show in a low-cut silver number slashed to the waist singing new track Don't Forget About Us.

Then the babe slipped into an even raunchier dress to collect her Favourite Female Soul/RnB Artist Award – sparkly black with a massive neck-to-navel cut out.

Other beauties at the LA bash included Lindsay Lohan, 19, Kelly Rowland, 24, who picked up two awards for Destiny's Child, and gorgeous Gwen Stefani, 36, who sang with Pharrell Williams, 33, and won the Top Female Pop Artist gong.

But it was the Brits that really wowed the crowds.

The Rolling Stones beamed a live two-track performance via satellite from the latest leg of their world tour in Salt Lake City, Utah.

And 50-year-old Annie Lennox's Eurythmics had everyone on their feet as they belted out a medley of their greatest hits.

Men In Black heart-throb Will Smith, 37, scooped Favourite Male Pop Artist while Brit band Coldplay bagged Favourite Artists in the Contemporary Adult Section.

Other winners at the Los Angeles bash included rapper Missy Elliot, 34, Eminem, 33, R'n'B band The Black Eyed Peas and American rockers Green Day.

Uni in ban on hoods & veils

■ by IAIN BURCHELL
UNIVERSITY chiefs have branded hoodies and hijabs a threat to security in the wake of the 7/7 London bombings.

Students at the city's Imperial College have been told not to wear them over their faces.

Security guards at the university, which has a large Muslim population, have been ordered to crack down on "unrecognisable individuals".

Attack

And anyone refusing to lift their hoodie or hijab faces being booted out.

The move comes after Education Secretary Ruth Kelly called for university extremism to be tackled.

But outraged students claim the new dress code is an attack on their freedom. The code says students must wear photographic ID cards around their necks at all times – so guards can see their faces to compare them.

It says: "Employees and students should refrain from wearing clothing which obscures the face, such as a full or half veil, or hooded tops or scarves."

Slade's cracker

"IT'S Christmaaaaas!" for Slade again after their seasonal favourite was voted the best ever festive number one.

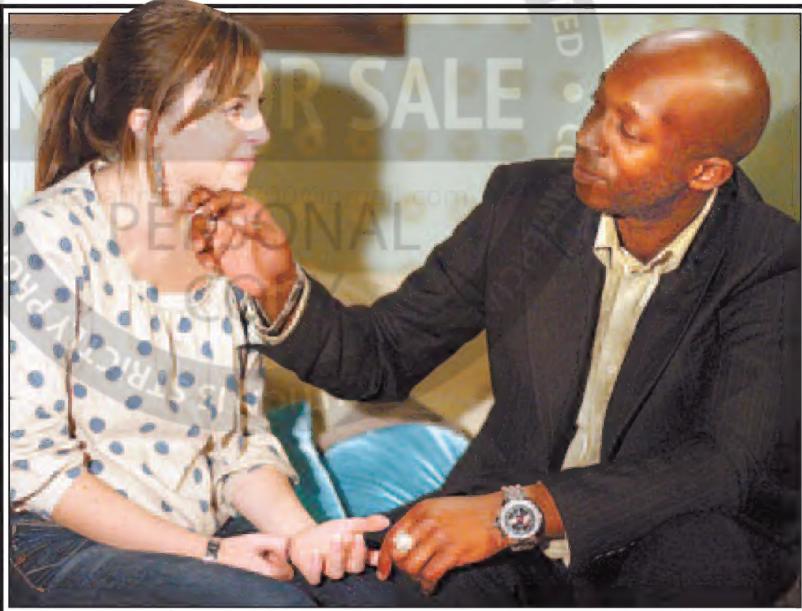

Merry Xmas Everybody topped Yahoo! Music's poll of the best Christmas chart toppers, taking more than one in three of the votes cast.

Yahoo editor Gareth Bellamy said: "It reveals our users aren't averse to a little nostalgia."

In second place was 1984's Do They Know It's Christmas? and Queen's not-so-festive Bohemian Rhapsody was third.

Martin's out-rage

SONIA Fowler is outed as a lesbian by her hubby. Angry Martin, played by James Alexandrou, 20, unmasks her during a furious Queen Vic row.

EastEnders Sonia (Nat Cassidy, 22), snoogs pal Naomi Julian before vowing to spend more time with her man.

But Martin decides they're in an affair and confronts her. An insider said: "Sonia blurts that it was 'just a kiss' in front of the punters, which makes it worse."

CORRIE'S HUNT FOR DR NASTY

Ramsden to return

■ by EMILY ROSE
CORRIE bosses are searching for a new Matt Ramsden to become Weatherfield's most hated man in 2006.

Actor Stephen Beckett, 38, who played the dirty doc, is not coming back to the show.

So the hunt is on for someone else to play the hunky GP, who seduced Maxine Peacock (Tracy Shaw, 32) in a one-night stand that resulted in their son Joshua.

Ramsden will bring heartache to Ashley and Claire Peacock, who are bringing up his biological son, when he returns to fight for custody.

Flings

The smooth-talking medic is also set for flings with some of the Street's sexiest women, including Frankie Baldwin (Debra Stephenson, 33) and barmaid Violet Wilson (Jenny Platt, 25).

A Street insider said: "The search has begun in earnest to find the new Dr Ramsden and an announcement will be made shortly.

"He will return to centre stage and he will become a character that the viewers will love to hate."

winner Mick Hutchinson

SPECIAL DELIVERY FOR POSTIE MICK

STAR POSTMAN Michael Hutchinson was celebrating a very special delivery yesterday – after winning a new car with the Daily Star.

Michael, 37, scooped a gleaming £17,000 Honda Civic Type R as the third lucky winner of our super Nobby Knows trivia competition. All the dad-of-one had to do was fire off a text message to put him on the road to success.

■ by JERRY LAWTON

He said: "I just can't believe it. To win a car is a total surprise. I'm still thinking: 'Is this real?'"

The Royal Mail deliveryman from Enderby, Leics, had been on the look-out for a new runabout to replace his N-reg Alfa Romeo 155.

He added: "This win has come along at just the right time. I usually spend most of the time slogging around in one of those really naff Royal Mail vans!"

For another chance to win a Honda Civic Type R, see tomorrow's Daily Star.

BOOZE BONUS MUSLIM SUES

He claims work wine incentive is 'racist'

TEETOTAL: Khan

A BRITISH-born Muslim is suing his employer for race and religious discrimination – because it only offered booze as a sales incentive.

Imran Khan claims Direct Line Insurance handed out bottles of wine as a reward for selling specific pet and household policies.

Prize

But he says the alcohol – which Muslims are strictly forbidden to drink – put him at a disadvantage because he could not claim the prize.

The landmark case under new Religious Discrimination regulations could open the floodgate to thousands of claims.

Mr Khan, 25, of Bristol – who still works for the company's sales department – is seeking damages for "hurt feelings" at a tribunal. He has worked in a team of 14 in the city for three-and-a-half years.

■ by ROXANNE KELLY

Bottles of wine were offered to reward sales twice between August and October 2004.

Mr Khan claims the company knows he is a Muslim and so the scheme excluded him. The tribunal heard he raised his concerns in four meetings earlier this year, but didn't ask for other rewards and began legal proceedings instead.

Team leader Louise Cummings said the incentives were a means to "improve staff morale and performance". She said she had no intention of discriminating against Mr Khan.

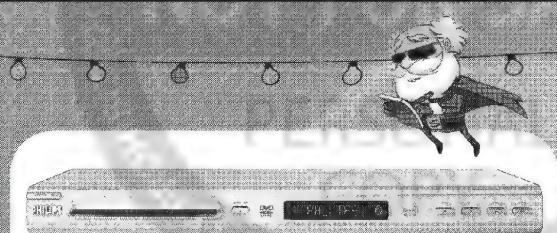

A judgment is expected in the next two weeks.

MIKE WARD'S Essential Festive TV Guide

CHRISTMAS is always the biggest date in the TV calendar and this year is certainly no exception.

So polish that telly screen and pull up a chair in preparation of thrills 'n' spills aplenty courtesy of the box. Here's a few of the seasonal highlights to look out for...

SOAP

WITH the exception of Hollyoaks all of these will be putting in a Christmas Day appearance, but the action continues throughout the festive fortnight.

EASTENDERS

A SHATTERED Alfie, mourning the loss of his dear Nana Loon, decides his future lies beyond Walford but desperately wants to mend things with Kat.

Also it looks like the end for Sonia and Martin "Lanky Moron" Fowler. And as New Year approaches, a key Walford character ends up brown bread.

CORONATION STREET

THE Corrie gang are treating us to their festive Coronation Street Panto, but this doesn't allow them any escape from their traditional seasonal misery.

Far from it, as the worsening state of Alzheimer's victim Mike Baldwin leads him to make an alarming blunder on Christmas Day.

Danny and Leanne then conspire to turn Mike's condition to their advantage.

EMMERDALE

THEY'RE still getting away with it on Christmas Day itself, but come December 28, Sadie and Matthew's sordid affair is finally exposed, forcing Matthew to choose where his loyalties lie.

HOLLYOAKS

IT's two days before Christmas (December 23) and teacher Becca and pupil Justin can no longer keep their grubby paws off each other.

DRAMA

BEYOND Soapland, of course, the big one everyone's talking about for Christmas Day is BBC1's Dr Who: The Christmas Invasion.

David Tennant makes his full debut as the Doc – tackling the threat of the evil Sycorax.

They're a race hell-bent on taking over Earth, even though they sound more like a nasal decongestant.

In the other big dramas, Smithy considers stepping down and joining Louise Larson in witness protection in The Bill, ITV1 on December 28.

Meanwhile, Amber decides to quit the force on December 29.

There's another two-part Casualty@Holby City, featuring the return of Michael French as Nick Jordan – one of four key characters involved in a car smash.

The first part is on

CRUISING FOR LAUGHS: Rob (Neil Pearson) Daniel (Tom Bennett) and Dave (Mark Benton) in The Booze Cruise 2 (ITV1, Christmas Day)

COMEDY

THE obvious ITV biggies will be Ant & Dec's Christmas Takeaway (date TBC) and three celeb dollops of Who Wants To Be A Millionaire, on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and Boxing Day.

The BBC's big Christmas Day comedy offering is the very last Two Ronnies. They also have a one-off Generation Game revival with Graham Norton as host for Boxing Day.

Meanwhile for their now traditional show opposite the Queen on Christmas Day, Channel 4 will dish up Jamie Oliver's Alternative Christmas Speech.

CORONATION Street stars past and present will camp it up this Christmas with a panto.

Weatherfield favourites have produced an hour-long special to mark the end of ITV's 50th birthday celebrations.

Debra Stephenson, 33, who plays Frankie Baldwin, a Cinderella while two-timing hubby Danny – Bradley Walsh, 45 – is her Prince Charming. Sarah Platt (Tina O'Brien, 22) plays Lady Lou Hardup while Jack Duckworth – Bill Tarmey, 84 – is her father the Baron.

Elsewhere, cafe boss Roy Cropper and nosy newsagent Norris Cole – David Neilson, 56, and Malcolm Hebden, 64 – will play the Ugly Sisters.

And barmy butcher Fred Elliott (John Savident, 67) will play the Fairy Godfather.

The transmission date for the special is still to be decided.

The stars will all be joining forces to perform some of Britain's best-loved duets.

Rumour is that Daily Star columnist Vanessa Feltz will be exercising her lungs, as well as the likes of Paul Daniels and Debbie McGee.

WHO'S BACK: The Tardis

BBC1
Classic Sweeney Todd, another French and Saunders Christmas Special, plus new festive episodes of My Family, As Time Goes By, and the Only Fools and Horses spin-off Green Green Grass.

There'll also be the return of 1970s favourites The Goodies, which will feature Graham Norton as host. Plus a revamped 2005 TV Moments, hosted by Jonathan Ross.

BBC2
Prince Phil's favourite The Catherine Tate Show.

ITV1
Under The Greenwood Tree, a Thomas Hardy tale, and Whatever Love Means based on Charles and Camilla's steamy relationship.

Meanwhile, Little Britain creators Matt Lucas and David Walliams will be earnestly pontificating about in the South Bank Show.

Phillip Schofield takes us through a sentimental journey of Christmas movies in Best Ever Christmas Films, with clips from flicks including The Grinch, It's a Wonderful Life and The Snowman.

CHANNEL 4:
The Comic Strip Presents, with Rik Mayall and Nigel Planer (Wednesday December 28), Jimmy Carr's The Big Fat Quiz Of The Year (Thursday, December 22) and Avid Merrion's XXmas Special (Thursday, December 22).

Highlights for the New Year include Ricky Gervais Meets Larry David, the bloke behind Seinfeld, a search for

The Ultimate Sitcom plus Derren Brown's The Heist.

FIVE:

If you fancy retro comedy, Five devote Boxing Day evening to creaky old 1970s sitcoms, including George and Mildred and On The Buses.

And don't miss The Morecambe and Wise Christmas Show, The Saint, Rising Damp, Robin's Nest and All Creatures Great and Small.

On December 29, there's also a one-off presented by Michael Buerk on the top ten events which shaped modern history.

It includes Martin Luther King's "I have a dream" speech and the internet's invention.

There's also a New Year's Day show on Shocking Celebrity Moments of 2005.

ALAN FRANK'S TOP MOVIES

'TIS the season to be jolly, so make jolly sure you have plenty of batteries for the remote control so you can enjoy the finest films on the box this Christmas. Here are some of the tastiest treats on offer...

★ ON the BBC, former chorus girl Catherine Zeta Jones struts her Oscar-winning stuff with Renée Zellweger and Richard Gere in the hit murder musical Chicago on Christmas Day.

★ LEONARDO DiCaprio cons all and sundry and stays one step ahead of pursuing lawman Tom Hanks in Steven Spielberg's entertaining fact-based thriller Catch Me If You Can on Boxing Day.

★ SPEILBERG returns to put Tom Cruise through his paces as a future cop facing danger in the blockbuster science fiction suspense Minority Report on New Year's Eve.

★ D O N ' T f a n c y turkey? How about a slice of boiled bunny, cooked to perfection by Michael Douglas's seriously scary sexual stalker Glenn Close in Fatal Attraction, which airs on Five at 9pm on December 23.

GREEN GIANT: Shrek

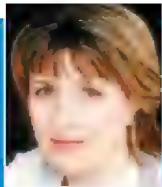

Also on Five is the ultimate family film, The Wizard of Oz on Sunday December 18 at 5pm. Dances with Wolves and National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation are on Christmas Day and on December 30 there's Goodfellow at 10pm – one of the best gangster movies ever.

★ OVER on ITV the big Christmas Day movie is The Grinch. There'll also be skulduggery in feature-length episodes of Midsomer Murders and Frost.

★ ON Sky Movies Wayne Rooney appears to be doubling as the amiable ogre in the hilarious animated comedy Shrek 2 on Sky Movies 1 at 3.15 on Christmas Day. Jane Austen also gets a Bollywood makeover in romantic comedy Bride and Prejudice on Sky Movies 2 at 8pm on December 27. Tom Cruise walks tall as a hired killer who takes cabbie Jamie Foxx for the hair-raising ride of his life in the tense thriller Collateral on Christmas Day at 8pm on Sky Movies 2.

★ OTHER festive satellite feasts include Layer Cake on Sky Movies 1 at 8.30pm on December 23 and Will Smith in I Robot on Sky Movies 1 at 7pm on New Year's Eve.

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES
YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY
... AND EVERY DAY

Jealous of her fellas

I'VE grown obsessed with my girlfriend's past. I can't stand the fact that she had several lovers before me and went out with one bloke for four years.

She's admitted that they were in love and every time I imagine them together I feel physically sick and depressed.

They went on loads of holidays as a couple and eventually split when he cheated on her.

However, she continued to see him "as a friend" and they slept together for a year.

Once he travelled 60 miles to our home town to see her and she ended up going back with him for a while.

After that there was another bloke who she also got close to.

Now she's with me and claims to be in love. She says I'm the best thing that's ever happened to her and I've no reason to doubt her.

But her former life continues to rankle.

I'm always quizzing her about her past and upsetting her. I've even thought about cheating on her just to teach her a lesson.

JANE SAYS: The unfortunate thing is that if you continue like this, then you will succeed in driving your girlfriend away.

She'll get so sick of your petty jealousy that you'll push her back into the arms of her ex or any guy she fancies.

I know thinking about your partner with another person is hard, but we have to get over it.

Most people these days have a bit of a past with embarrassing baggage thrown in. It's just the way it is.

I'M SMALL CHANGE FOR MY RICH BITCH

LOLLY DOLLY:
She goes back to him when he cancels her credit card

Should I tell on cheat?

I DISCOVERED that my best friend's husband is out of work – and she doesn't know a thing about it.

Every morning he gets up and sets off for "the office". But the truth is that he walks half a mile up the road and pops straight into his lover's house where he spends the day.

She's also married and someone who knows her well tells me that she openly boasts about the days she spends in bed with her "sex god". My friend would choke on her cornflakes at the idea of her husband being described as a sex god.

She recently told me that they hadn't made love in six months because he's not able to maintain an erection.

I don't know what this guy is doing for money, but he's certainly not earning any and I don't know if I should say something.

JANE SAYS: I think that I'd be inclined to keep well out of this

MY girlfriend is married to a rich man she can't stand.

She says he is incapable of love and is totally self-centred.

She's left him for me several times, but always goes back when he threatens to sell their house, move abroad and leave her with nothing.

We were together for three glorious weeks over the summer. We went on holiday, enjoyed days at the beach and made love like a couple of newlyweds.

But one day I got home from work to find she had gone.

She'd left a note saying she loved me but had to go back to him. He had cancelled her credit cards and was making life so difficult for her financially she felt she had no choice.

I wept until I ached, but three days later she texted me asking if we could meet for lunch.

Like an idiot I went along and now we're secretly seeing each other again two or three times a week.

My problem is that I don't know where I stand or what the future holds for me.

I love this woman with all my heart and sexually we're dynamite. But will one. Surely it can only be a matter of time before your friend discovers that her husband isn't earning any cash?

He can only survive on credit cards for so long before the bills start pouring in.

Or she will hear, courtesy of his loudmouthed lover, that he isn't going to work at all.

By all means be there for her when she needs a shoulder to cry on. But don't be tempted to play the role of messenger – or you might get shot.

she ever be mine? At the moment she's talking about leaving him again just before Christmas and coming to Australia with me.

Naturally she expects me to pay for her ticket and accommodation but won't give me any firm assurances about our relationship.

She says that this time she "thinks" it will be forever but it all depends on how her husband reacts.

The bottom line is that she loves money and isn't prepared to be penniless for me.

Unless her husband gives her a whacking great pay-off, I can't see that she'll ever want us to be together permanently – and I don't know if that's good enough for me.

JANE SAYS: You've said it yourself – your girlfriend loves money more than anything else.

She's prepared to sacrifice a happy and loving relationship with you for a fistful of credit cards.

She'll endure an on/off marriage to an appalling man simply so that she can continue to buy stuff.

She's motivated purely by greed and that doesn't make her a very nice person in my book.

She uses you to get all the love and adoration she craves, but won't give up anything in return.

Surely there's more to life than baubles and beads? In you she has a ready-made partner for life, someone who is willing to make sacrifices and make the very best of a difficult situation.

But that's not enough for her. My feeling is she's using you. You're too good for her and must stand up for yourself.

HER STROP AT BABE PICCIES

I'VE finally met the girl of my dreams and am convinced that she's the one.

I had four serious relationships before meeting her and have fond memories of all of them.

In fact, I've put photographs of my four ex-girlfriends in a large frame in my study.

When my girlfriend first saw it she commented on how pretty they all were – one in particular worked as a model.

But now she's gone very peculiar indeed. She's told me to get rid of all of my old photos because I'm with her now. Apart from the fact that I'd feel like I was losing an important part of my past, I have never seen this insecure or jealous side of her before.

JANE SAYS: I think that keeping these photographs of your four ex-girlfriends on show is insensitive.

I know I wouldn't like it one bit.

By all means keep them in an album or drawer, but have some consideration for your current partner by packing them away.

How would you like it if she had pictures of her ex-lovers on display?

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:
You may have to find new ways to express yourself this year. How you do it is not that important, but meaning what you say is.

Aries (Mar 21–Apr 20)

WORK could take you further afield. What's more, you are about to enter a particularly thrilling phase in your life if you're travelling. Metaphorically speaking, you appear to be standing in the doorway, but you will soon be pointed in a new direction – even if you end up at a place you know very well. TURN UP THE HEAT AND TREAT YOUR LEGS TO Polly's pretty DON'T freeze your socks off this winter – just check out the amazing new range from Pretty Polly.

You're sure to find just the thing to keep your pins looking perfect while staying wonderfully warm.

The hosiery company has branched out with a funky new collection of knee highs, stockings and tights, which offer a sexy way to beat the winter chill.

Called Leg Looks, Pretty Polly's range of bright colours, fishnets, textured patterns and funky designs are a real antidote to the cold, grey days ahead.

But don't fear if you're a fan of the label's more traditional products – there's still the usual classic opaques in this year's must-have seasonal shades, midnight, chocolate and bottle green.

It's a move into red hot fashion for the firm which has already won an army of fans with its sensational ranges.

This time it has gone for a designer feel, taking its lead from the international catwalk. And the results are totally affordable and chic enough to make a real style statement.

The more outlandish designs are the perfect leg candy for party girls who want to make an impression. Or if you're a little more cautious, try contrasting a classic black dress with one of the more sexy, flirty options.

Either way, you'll be sure to turn heads. So why not snap up some Pretty Polly bargains and transform yourself into a leggy lovely?

MATT BAYLIS

...ON LAST NIGHT'S TV

CONGRATULATIONS are due to the makers of CORONATION STREET (ITV1) for defying the laws of soap opera. It's often said – by me anyway – that the more episodes of a soap you put out, the less believable it becomes.

The Weatherfield posse put that to the test this week, with a whopping three episodes on Monday night, and a double bill yesterday. But somehow, they pulled it off – perhaps because the stories they're juggling at present are so gripping.

We've got Sunita looking more pregnant by the minute with Dev's twins, but still refusing to forgive him for his secret life. Then there's scheming Sarah Platt, who will stop at nothing to capture the heart of Jason Grimshaw, a bloke so dopey that an earthworm could beat him in an IQ test. You had to sympathise with Jason, when his girlfriend finally discovered he'd betrayed her. "Was she good in bed?" she demanded.

This was Jason's chance to grovel at her feet for forgiveness, and to reassure the barmaid that she was the true love of his life. "Well, it was different, wasn't it?" he said.

Feud

Meanwhile, though it's not obvious where it's all heading yet, the ongoing feud between Tracy and Claire was wound up a notch. Claire told Deirdre that she thought little Amy had whooping cough, which made Tracy look, once again, like the Mother From Hell. As Deirdre took the kid off to earthy, Tracy got into a right state at home. Not out of concern for her small daughter, but because there was no one to make the dinner.

You'd have thought that someone as harmless as Claire would be below Tracy's radar, but it seems that's exactly why she hates her. "She buys all her clothes from a kiddies' boutique," Tracy snarled last night. "She looks like a flipping Care Bear."

Claire retaliated by saying that Tracy was the sort of woman who'd have been dunked in a pond in bygone centuries.

But witches aren't real, while there's something about classic soap-bitches like Tracy that is – and that's what makes her so rewarding to watch.

THREE people all died at the same time - a pensioner, a middle-aged man and a young blonde.

The policeman had to explain to the coroner why all three died with big smiles on their faces.

The pensioner died of heart failure while making love to his young mistress, he said, while the middle-aged man drank himself to death celebrating winning a million on the lottery.

The coroner asked: "What of the third body?"

"Ah," says the policeman. "She was struck by lightning."

"Why is she smiling then?" "She thought she was having her photo taken."

DENZYL ROBERTS, Warwick. TWO skin cells are sat in a pub chatting when one says: "I looked in the mirror the other day and I'd turned blue with yellow spots."

The other replies: "I don't believe you, it must be a pigment of your imagination."

P.J. ACKLAM, Hull.

£10 LETTER

YOUR stories about political correctness affecting Christmas don't surprise me at all.

We received a "festive" greeting from our local councillor, who was clearly worried not to offend minorities in his ward.

We got a "Prosperous Diwali" wish and a "Eid Mubarak" wish, but no mention of Christmas for the Christian community.

His seasonal message has offended me, and he won't be getting my vote again.

Mrs J. WEST, Bolton.

GREAT to hear that Kylie Minogue is planning some new gigs in Australia (Daily Star, November 21).

What a fighter she is - truly amazing. She is an inspiration to all cancer sufferers.

JOAN GRANT, Inverness.

DOES George Best know how lucky he is to have the best medical attention? I'm 87 years old and have to wait until the end of November for a flu jab.

GLADYS BREARLEY, Ashton-under-Lyne.

Xmas is for Christians

most people moanin bout gettin xmas taken away arnt even religious the other 11 months of year. If u not catholic u shudnt be havin xmas! Fife Atheist

I'm sick of north-south divide. Just coz northern houses bigger, mortgages smaller and air fresher. Poor southerners. scunny woody

So Sepp wants to ban national anthem. Whats all the fuss about. We dont play our national anthem anyway.

Its a JOKE. The Geezer Weymouth

Stevie. U tell that 2 the thousands of brits in the building trade who have lost jobs 2 east europeans. clive

Armed police have been on streets on n ireland as long as Ive lived. Made me feel safer. Cazza Antrim

Can anyone tell me the two old grandads in the muppet show please? julie newcastle

NOEL EDMONDS IS MR CHANNEL 4. GOOD SHOW AND SO FIT! DEAL WITH HIM ANYTIME! ANON
